TEARDROP MINISTRY PRAYER

Blessed Monica, mother of St. Augustine, we give thanks to our Father in Heaven who looked with mercy upon your tears over your wayward son. His conversion and heroic sanctification were the fruit of your prayers.
Dear St. Monica we now ask you to pray with us for all those sons and daughters that have wandered away from God, and to add your prayers to those of all mothers who are worried over their children. Pray also for us that, following your example, we may, in the company of our children, one day enjoy the eternal vision of our Father in Heaven. Amen. St. Monica pray for us.

Solemnity of Our Lord Jesus Christ - November 22, 2026

Reflection

By Rev. Leonard N. Peterson

The visit of King Charles of England to our country was a salute to the long-standing alliance between our two lands. His visit was marked with a great deal of pomp. His eloquent speech to Congress was sprinkled with historical references and some gentle humor. I don't believe anything of the king's visit tarnished our 250th anniversary as a nation. But it did bring into sharp focus the fact that our nation began as a revolution against royalty, that is, against the ancestors of King Charles.

Human kings and queens throughout history often turned out to be crowned scoundrels with the perennial bad habit of intolerance and cruelty toward their subjects. The modern fascination many of us have with royalty has its place for sure. But when it comes to conferring the title of "King" on Christ Jesus, Our Lord, we have to be careful about our definitions.

We are hardly talking about the likes of human kings because in this case we are talking about God. Note the contrast as presented by Matthew's Gospel.

Here is a king whose hallmark is service. Not to and for an elite marked by wealth. His service was chiefly to the poor and the afflicted. That kind of service, as practiced by us His "subjects," or better, His followers, will form the basis of His judgment of us when that time comes.

It is helpful that we have models of this kind of loving service across the spectrum of creeds. Our own St. Francis of Assisi, who left a wealthy family and chose a life of poverty, spent his days caring for the poor and sick. Saint Teresa of Calcutta, who worked with the poor in India, is another prime example among the vast host of Church saints.

To them we can add William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, who worked tirelessly to help the poor and disadvantaged in Victorian England. Another is Eric Liddell, the subject of the movie "Chariots of Fire," who won an Olympic gold medal in 1924 but who then returned to China in 1925 to work as a teacher and missionary. The list is long. But we can make it longer, each in our own personal way.

Dwight Lyman Moody, a 19th-century American evangelist and publisher, once aptly observed, "We may easily be too big for God to use, but never too small."

God love you and give you His peace..

Peace be with you. Friends, we've come to the end of the liturgical year, which means the Feast of Christ the King. We always end the year with this reflection on the lordship of Jesus. This year, the Church gives us as the first reading a marvelous passage from the 34th chapter of the prophet Ezekiel. Israel, which was meant to be the nation to gather all the nations of the world, the nation to give God right praise and thereby attract everyone in the world, that nation of Israel is now crushed, defeated, its capital city destroyed, its temple burned down.

Jesus saw that very bad leadership on the part of Israel's shepherds was also to blame. “My holy people have been very badly shepherded.'" That's what he's saying. "'I've tolerated this long enough, so I myself will come to shepherd my holy people.'" Now, I mean, to be sure, God has been sending representatives. The patriarchs and the prophets and the great heroes. God's sending people. But here is a prediction, a promise, that God himself will come in person to shepherd his people. Jesus presents himself not as one more in a long line of prophets. Jesus presents himself speaking and acting in the very person of the God of Israel, and therefore as himself the one who has come to shepherd his people. I know my sheep and mine know me, he's not just saying, I'm one more representative of God. He's fulfilling the prophecy of Ezekiel. That's who Jesus was.

This is now Yahweh speaking through Ezekiel, I will seek out my sheep. I will rescue them from all the places they've been scattered. But where is he most fully the good shepherd? Precisely in his journey all the way to the bottom of sin and death, and then in the resurrection, leading his sheep forth. That's the fulfillment, even beyond the dreams of Ezekiel's prophecy.

What's the command of the risen Christ to his apostles? Go and preach to all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. What does the great shepherd of the sheep do? He now raises up shepherds after his own heart, who will continue his very work —that's the work of the church. The bad kings of Israel have now been supplanted by this great shepherd of the sheep, this great king, who is drawing us under his aegis to serve his purposes. He's meant to be, yes, indeed, the king of Israel and the king of all the nations, and we are the servants of this great king.

Well, now we glance at the Gospel for today, which is that magnificent and chilling passage from the 25th chapter of Matthew, the parable of the sheep and the goats, and Jesus the judge at the end of time separating them out. When I was hungry, you gave me to eat. When I was thirsty, you gave me to drink. When I was naked, you clothed me. In prison, you visited me, etc. The shepherd of the sheep, Christ the king, sends us out to do that work. That's how we shepherd.

So can I suggest this, everybody, on this feast of Christ the king? This is a wonderful way for us to examine our consciences. These are the words of the great shepherd of the sheep. How are we participating in his work? Maybe at the end of the day, we could all ask ourselves, did I follow the command of the king today? Were there people that crossed my path today who were literally hungry for food? I mean, not far from where I live, you can find people a few blocks away literally hungry for food. Did I feed them? Were there people that crossed my path today hungry for attention? Hungry for a few moments of my time? Did I feed them? Were there people that crossed my path today who were literally thirsty? Or perhaps thirsty for love, thirsty for kindness, thirsty for friendship? Did God place in my path today perhaps a stranger dying on the inside from loneliness? Did he put in my path today someone who literally needed clothes or perhaps needed to be sheltered from attacks and from gossip? Did I have today the opportunity to visit somebody in prison? Or perhaps to help free somebody from the imprisonment of his addiction? When we do these things we are operating in tandem with Christ the King. When we do these things, we are cooperating with the great shepherd of the sheep who's been sent to shepherd his own people. But we are the privileged means by which he does this.

On this Feast of Christ the King, we do indeed look to him, and we give praise to him. We acknowledge him as our Lord. But we also look very seriously at our own cooperation with him. We will find the criterion by which to determine whether we are following that king or not.

And may God bless you all.
