TEARDROP MINISTRY PRAYER

Blessed Monica, mother of St. Augustine, we give thanks to our Father in Heaven who looked with mercy upon your tears over your wayward son. His conversion and heroic sanctification were the fruit of your prayers.
Dear St. Monica we now ask you to pray with us for all those sons and daughters that have wandered away from God, and to add your prayers to those of all mothers who are worried over their children. Pray also for us that, following your example, we may, in the company of our children, one day enjoy the eternal vision of our Father in Heaven. Amen. St. Monica pray for us.

Reflection

By Rev. Leonard N. Peterson

Just like our Holy Founder Jesus, His Church, our Church, is often "a sign of contradiction." While regular stores and the online shopping channels have both had their Christmas merchandise on display since right after Labor Day, the Church begins the preparatory Advent season differently for sure. She offers dire warnings about watchfulness for the end times. Penitential purple is her decor vs. red and green.

That doesn't allow us to accuse the Church of being ornery. She is just rightly asking us to pay attention to ultimate matters. She wants us to be watchful and ready for the coming end of time. That is when we will be facing not the mute Infant of the crib, but the divine Judge of all. Not much room for "holly jolly" then.

Why does holy Church take this stance right now? Because every feast demands a fast beforehand. Preparation makes the celebration sweeter. Christmas joy is only a hint at the greater joy that awaits us in eternity. You might say that the Church takes the position of a mature adult versus the giddy joy of a child daydreaming about toys. She wants us to think about why Christ was born among us: to save us from sin.

The plain fact He told us was that this world as we know it will one day end. It could be ten minutes from now or ten thousand years from now. Our job as believers is to live as He commanded and be ready for anything that happens because we believe that He loves us unconditionally.

True, we celebrate soon the astounding marvel of His birth among us as the Son of a human virgin both holy and humble. But we also need to be humble before Him and practice what He preached when He grew up. If we do that to the best of our ability, we can look forward to being in His presence and enjoying His peace for all the seasons of eternity. It just demands a prep season first.

Pope John Paul I, the smiling Pope who reigned so briefly, in a September 1978 interview said this: "If someone had told me I would be Pope one day, I would have studied harder."

God love you and give you His peace.

PROCEEDS GO TO SAINT JUDE'S
KEEP CHRIST IN CHRISTMAS!
FAITH ★ FAMILY ★ COMMUNITY ★ CHARITY ★ UNITY ★ FRATERNITY

Peace be with you. Friends, we come to this first Sunday of Advent to the liturgical New Year. Advent's a time to get back to basics, kind of like a basic training. Some of the most fundamental truths of our faith are on display in today's readings. But let's start with that familiar Advent hymn. O come, O come, Emmanuel, and ransom captive Israel, that mourns in lonely exile here until the Son of God appear. It's this cry of the heart, asking Emmanuel to come. You see the clear implication? Whatever problem we have here, it's not one that we can solve. What can you do to save yourself? Nothing, except to cry out, come, come, someone save me.

You want to know what the enemy of Christianity is? It's the view that, yeah, I've got problems, sure, but I can solve them, with enough psychological insight, with enough virtuous practice, with enough social reform. If we just straighten out the political situation, make the economy better, whatever it is, I can save myself from my dilemma. That's just an ancient heresy. A lot of people up and down the ages think, yeah, I can solve it. I can deal with this myself somehow. St. Augustine saw this and said that view is the enemy of a salvation religion like Christianity. We're in the problem we're in and it's not one that we can solve. Rather, we need grace. We need a power to come from outside of our dysfunction to set it right. Christians look for a savior.

Oh, come. Oh, come, Emmanuel, and ransom captive Israel. Many of us are familiar with the phenomenon of addiction. No matter what you're addicted to, all forms of sin are really forms of addiction. When you're caught in addiction, what can't you do? You can't save yourself from it, right? Think of all the 12-step programs. That's born of Christianity. If you say, look, I'm powerless over this addiction, and the more I try through my own efforts to make it right, the worse I'm going to make it. No, no. Oh, come, oh, come, Emmanuel, turn your life over to a higher power. Only in that way are you going to be saved.

This is exactly what the doctrine of original sin teaches, by the way. Sin affects all of us like a poisonous atmosphere. So there's the particular sins that we commit and some grace has to come from without and invite me to share a higher and a better life. See, to get this principle is to get Christianity. And Advent is the season where we're meant to get in touch with our dysfunction, our deep need for grace. Only then are we ready for the coming of Christ. But not the Christmas that turns into the silly superficial society of Santa Claus. But Christianity, Christmas, is all about a captive people unable to save themselves who are longing for the coming of the Savior. See, until we get into that space, we're not going to get it.

Our first reading from Isaih says Behold, he's speaking to the Lord, you are angry and we're sinful. All of us have become like unclean people. All our good deeds are like polluted rags. We have all withered like leaves. You say, oh, what a pessimistic view. That's not pessimistic. That is the realistic view of someone who's living inside of a dysfunctional family. And it doesn't mean that there's nothing good at all going on. That even the best of actions are affected by sin. And so he cries out, There is none who calls upon your name, O Lord, who rouses himself to cling to you. Now that's a good attitude. What can we do during this time? Call out his name. Help me. Save me. Emmanuel, come, come.

In the second reading Paul addresses the Corinthians, Brothers and sisters, grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. See, what Paul is saying is this grace that we need and that we long for has come to us in Christ Jesus our Lord. Open yourself to him, surrender to him, accept him. He's the free gift of grace to sinners.

He continues, God is faithful and by him you were called into fellowship with his son, Jesus Christ our Lord. That's the answer for life's addictions and sins. Go where he is and stay there. Move into fellowship with his son. Okay, now we're in a Christian space.

The grace of Christ has come. May that same mind be in you that was in Christ Jesus, Paul says. He also says, it's no longer I who live. It's Christ who lives in me. That's called the fire of the Holy Spirit, by the way. What's Advent? It's just this time of the realization of our captivity. And then from the depth of your being, you can say, come, come, Emmanuel, and ransom captive Israel. Fall in love with Christ. Stay in love with Christ. Find fellowship with him. That's our salvation.

And may God bless you all.
